

This will depend on the course you choose to protect the land. For example, a survey and/or an appraisal might be required. Some of those costs could be refundable depending upon the agency you work with on your project. In addition, the Conservancy will require a donation to be put toward the ongoing monitoring of the property and legal defense or other items. That amount can vary depending upon the complexity of the conservation easement.