

The experience locally in Union County has been that farm properties with conservation easements on average are not selling for less than those without. However, to a real estate developer the value would likely be reduced since a property with a conservation easement would have its development rights restricted.