

You own the property. The property remains in private hands. A land trust is not permitted to own property on which it holds a conservation easement. The owner retains all rights to the property except those he/she voluntarily gives up in the conservation easement document. Subsequent owners have the same rights and are bound by the same restrictions.