

No. Portions may be left out of the agreement. Furthermore, different portions of the property can be assigned different management strategies and, therefore, have different restrictions applied to each.